Colored Pencils

Instructor: Paul Martin

Martin will cover the fundamentals of using colored pencils to create artwork, focusing on techniques like layering, blending, and color mixing. Students will learn how to apply colored pencils effectively, understand color theory and develop their drawing skills. The class will also explore techniques like layering, cross-hatching, blending, burnishing, and creating smooth gradients. We will learn how to apply drawing principles like proportion, line weight, add shading to colored pencil work and specialized advanced techniques like creating textures, simulating different materials, like fur or glass, or combining colored pencils with other media like watercolor or markers. Finally, you will explore your own artistic voice and develop a personal style and unique approach to their artwork using colored pencils.

Introduction to Brush Calligraphy

Instructor: Marjorie Politi

Have you always wanted to learn calligraphy? Brush calligraphy is a great way to achieve those thick and thin strokes that make the letterforms so beautiful, but without the worry of nibs and ink. In this 3-week course you'll learn the basic strokes for both the uppercase and lowercase alphabet, including numbers and punctuation. Once you learn the fundamental strokes, you'll learn how to connect the letters, and form words. And even if you don't remember these strokes, you'll have enough reference to practice and continue your lettering journey. A fun project will be included. All levels are welcome! The supply list will be provided.

Watercolor Pencils and Making a Mandala

Instructor: Laura Nicholls

Watercolor pencils combine the skills of drawing with painting and they are similar to colored pencils but behave differently when water is added! In a WC pencil, the colored pigment has a water-soluble binder that dissolves to create watercolor paint effects, or - if you desire - the effects that appear like a regular colored pencil. It's a fun medium!!

Mandalas are repeating geometric shapes made up within a circle, and have been used as a form of meditation as well as symmetrical art patterns. A mandala can be as simple or complex as you wish to make it. Using pre-existing mandala examples, as well as learning the 'how-tos' of watercolor pencils (and 'how-to' create symmetrical circular patterns) will offer participants a fun, non-stressful experience!

ART HISTORY:

Andrew Wyeth, Chadds Ford, and Kuerner's Farm

Instructor: Laura Nicholls

Kuerner Farm is a short walk from Andrew Wyeth's Chadds Ford (Pa) studio, and played a significant part in the development of Wyeth's career. As a youth Wyeth gained the trust of the Kuerner family, and for over the next 60 years, both the family and farm inspired over 1,000 artworks. In Wyeth's words: "I recalled the marvelous amber color of the rich landscape and the lucid pond looking almost like the eye of the earth reflecting everything in creation." Please join us as we explore the artworks of Wyeth's intriguing 'Eye of the Earth' that portray the Kuerner family, farmhouse and landscape.

Romare Bearden

Instructor: Laura Nicholls

Romare Bearden, a celebrated humanist and artist, was a man of many talents that included music, performing arts, history and literature. During the 1930's, Bearden joined the Harlem Artists Guild and embarked on lifelong study of art, gaining inspiration from the Renaissance masters as well as early 20th C Moderns and traditional African art. After his US Army service on the European front during WW II, Bearden returned to Paris to study art history and philosophy. As an artist, Bearden celebrated the African-American experience through a modernist lens. After working for several decades primarily as a painter, Bearden found his own unique artistic voice and began to create collages made of cut and torn photographs found in popular magazines reassembling them into visual representations of African-American life. Please join us as we trace the life and artistic legacy of Romare Bearden who's work mirrored, in a modernist sense, the African American community.

The Passion of Urban Photography: Berenice Abbott and Vivian Maier

Instructor: Laura Nicholls

Berenice Abbot's passion was photographing New York City, Vivian Maier's was Chicago. Both extraordinary urban photographers - but, whereas Abbott was acknowledged and heralded during her lifetime, Maier's work remained unknown and took photos only to please herself. Initially studying painting and sculpture - and without any photographic experience - Abbot became the American photographer Man Ray's assistant while in Paris during the early 1920's. Returning to NYC in 1929, Abbott realized the photographic potential of witnessing a city as it transformed into a modern metropolis. She focused her efforts on documentary photography. After a brief time in NYC, Maier moved to Chicago and became a nanny and personal care giver. In her leisure time she photographed the streets of Chicago purely for personal rather than commercial reasons. Both women, although born a generation apart, portrayed the life of the individual city that they lived in and loved - through their own personal vision. Please join us as we explore these two extraordinary American photographers.

American Impressionists and Their Art Colonies

Instructor: Laura Nicholls

Although not initially fond of the European ‘modern trend’ of French Impressionism, American painters began to be influenced by the movement’s focus on ‘modern life’, bright color palette and vibrant brushwork.

The beauty of American life and leisure at the end of the 19th C became a focal point for many American painters who adopted brighter palettes and loose brushstrokes so that they might capture the natural world and/or urban energy. In so doing, they broke with traditional expectations to usher in the first popular, modern art movement in America. The resultant art colonies played a critical role in the development of the American Impressionist Movement - groups of artists lived and worked together and shared a common aesthetic vision. Some of the most important American Impressionist artists gathered at nearby Cos Cob and Old Lyme Connecticut, New Hope Pennsylvania, and in Boston Massachusetts. Please join us as we explore the development of the American Impressionist artist’s movement and their resultant art colonies - where, as a group of artists with shared ideals, painted the paintings that became the basis of many American industrialist’s private art collections.

A Tour Story

Instructor: Ryan Bucci/Bucci Tours

A Tour Story is a unique presentation by speaker Ryan Bucci that brings Sicily to life through the lens of a past BucciTour. Combining engaging storytelling with original paintings by local Sicilian artist Katia Fasullo, evocative photographs, and map-guided routes, the event retraces the landscapes, architecture, and traditions that define the island. Props and meaningful artifacts enrich the narrative, creating a multi-sensory experience that feels both personal and cultural. Designed to be informative and immersive, A Tour Story reveals how travel becomes a bridge between history, place, and human connection. Whether your passion is art, history, or the joy of shared journeys, this presentation offers a vivid and memorable window into the spirit of Sicily.

Interesting and Little-Known Sites Along the Delaware and Hudson Canal

Instructors: Dr. Isseks and Andy Mills

Dr. Isseks and Andy Mills have spent the last 40 years walking and mountain biking along the D and H Canal. They have a very intimate knowledge of the canal in its present state from Carbondale, Pa. to Kingston, NY. There are not many people alive today who have personal experience with nearly every inch of the Canal in New York State over these many years. They have chosen about 15 sites of particular interest to discuss. The students will gain a general knowledge of the building and function of the Canal but the focus in this lecture is to discuss the relevance of and anecdotal information regarding these important sites. All sites can be visited easily by car and the audience will be informed as to what road to park on as many sites are not easily identified by map.

The Jazz Ambassadors: A Cello Show with Alex Prizgintas

Instructor: Alex Prizgintas

More than simply providing a concert, the cello is the vehicle that delivers something so very unique. “You see a musician sitting with a cello and you may immediately think ‘classical music,’ except this is so much more,” according to Alex Prizgintas who, together with his cello, guitar pedals, and looping station, is an uncommon troubadour. “We give a show and not a concert, and that show is driven by the topic,” explains Alex. “With the Jazz Ambassadors, my off-stage narrator and I tackle the complicated topic of jazz musicians employed by the State Department to counter Russian propaganda about America’s racism. While a diverse mix of American Jazz musicians toured a variety of countries across Asia, the Middle East, Africa, Europe, and Latin America challenging the veracity of Russia's racists accusations, black students back home in America were being sent to school accompanied by armed guards in states such as Arkansas. There was a disconnect and this show provides context and content along with some engaging conversation.

Landscape Architecture in the Hudson Valley: Calvert Vaux, Frederick Law Olmsted, and Andrew Jackson Downing

Instructor: Alex Prizgintas

The latest historical lecture offered by Hudson Valley historian Alex Prizgintas showcases the rich legacy of Landscape Architecture in our region. Highlighting the work of Calvert Vaux, Frederick Law Olmsted, and Andrew Jackson Downing, Prizgintas explored their rise to fame and most famous projects—much of which can be drawn to the city of Newburgh where the three crossed paths for the first times in the 1850s. Adapted from Alex’s 2021 film documentary produced in part with Marist College’s Hudson River Valley Institute, both Olmsted and Vaux remained tied to the Hudson Valley even after their fame with the construction of Central Park—particularly through Vaux’s architectural works and the business of the Olmsted Bros. firm. This program pays attention to landmarks that received influences from both minds, such as Middletown’s Hillside Cemetery, Newburgh’s Downing Park, Matthew Vassar’s Springside, the Hudson River State Hospital, and several other locations across the Hudson Valley.

Animal Guides and Their Helpful Messages

Instructor: Rebecca Golgoski

According to Dr. Steven Farmer, “when animals come to you in an unusual way or repeatedly, whether in physical or symbolic form, they are serving as spirit guides attempting to get a message to you.” Here’s what you can expect in this workshop! What are spirit animal guides? How do they show up – and why? The most popular animal guides (such as butterflies, cardinals, rabbits) and some of their symbolic meanings. Relax with a guided meditation and meet one of your spirit animal guides. Together we’ll get to the bottom of what your spirit animal is encouraging you to embrace in the present moment – whether it’s to express yourself, add more color to your life, stay grounded, or more!

A Celebration of Poetry: An Ode to The Ode!

Instructor: Rebecca O’Herron

The purpose of this course is to enjoy reading and discussing several odes, both traditional and modern. The course will include: a brief discussion of the Greek and Roman origins of this form; the reading of a few more traditional English odes by such poets as John Keats, Percy Bysshe Shelley, Alexander Pope and W.H. Auden; and, finally and hopefully the most fun, looking at how we have changed our ideas in the most recent odes written by a wide variety of authors. If time permits, we will conclude by looking at a few shorter poems that may or may not be odes. We will be like detectives and search out whatever remnants of the ode we can find. My hope is that we will not find this an "odious" task!

Secrets of Wall Street

Instructor: Richard Nathan

Have you just come into some money or have some money to invest? This lively, fact packed seminar is a must for those who want to learn from strictly a consumer advocate, Richard Nathan. Since he is not a salesman and has nothing to sell you, he will be blunt and straightforward about things that you are not supposed to know and were never taught in high school or college. You will be taught how not to be ripped off when buying cars, buying insurance, investing with or without financial planners and when investing in mutual funds on your own. After taking this course, you will have the confidence to invest on your own or be able to interview financial planners so you can find those who are truly working for you. You will learn how to stretch and save your hard-earned money. There is an optional material fee of $20 payable to the instructor.

MEET THE AUTHOR:

Soldiers in the Schoolhouse: A Military History of the JROTC

Instructor: Arthur T. Coumbe

This presentation explores the history and evolution of the Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps (JROTC), based on his book – Soldiers in the Schoolhouse: A Military History of the JROTC. The book is the first comprehensive study to cover the program's entire history. Written from the perspective of the military services, the book examines JROTC's development within the broader framework of national policy and defense strategy. It focuses on how the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps conceived, managed, and adapted their programs in response to changing social, political, and strategic environments. Emphasizing the national and institutional dimensions rather than local or unit-level experiences, the presentation offers a fresh understanding of JROTC as a strategic instrument linking education, citizenship, and national security. This is a one-hour class consisting of a 45-minute lecture followed by 15 minutes of questions and discussion.

Fairies of the Northeastern United States: A History

Instructor: Andrew Warburton

Join author Andrew Warburton as he presents his book series, Fairies of the Northeastern United States: A History. Americans of the northeastern United States have long told stories about fairies and Little People. From the mountains and forests of New England to the busy cities of New York State to the mines of Pennsylvania, a diverse array of fairy beings populate the stories of American immigrant and Indigenous communities. In this class, Andrew Warburton draws on his three books of North American fairy folklore to introduce a range of fairies found in American folklore, old and new. These include pixies in Marblehead, Massachusetts; banshees in Pittsburgh and New York City; forest dwarves in Maine and Pennsylvania; water fairies in New Hampshire; and goblins in New York's Hudson Valley. As well as lecturing, Andrew will also introduce short readings about the Northeast's fairy hauntings.

Mafia Burial Ground: The Mob and St. John's Cemetery

Author: Anthony Musso

The New York Mafia was organized with five distinct crime families. Combined, the families that operated throughout the five boroughs, Long Island and northern New Jersey consisted of thousands of racketeers and gangsters. Cemeteries in the New York area hold the remains of many Mafia members. While some have two or three Mafioso interred on their property, St.

John's Cemetery in Middle Village, Queens, has the bodies of an astonishing 32 mobsters occupying plots on its grounds. It includes names like Luciano, Profaci, Galante, Gambino, Gotti, Colombo and Genovese, among others. Some are buried near former associates while others are interred near those who were formidable adversaries in life. In some cases, mobsters are buried in close proximity to the individuals who actually ordered their murder. Hear how each of these 32 Mafioso contributed to the growth and criminal activities of the New York Mafia!

Faces from Mitchel Field

Instructor: Paul Martin

Join local author and historian Paul Martin as he discusses the first volume of his multi-volume series, Faces from Mitchel Field, the result of ten years of writing and a lifetime of research. The heritage and legacy of Mitchel Field is a compelling narrative, linking Leonardo da Vinci's 16th century visionary drawings of flying machines to the drama of 20th century aviation. It influenced not only the history of scientific and aerial achievement, but the history of America and the world as well. Today, Mitchel Field's flight line and base remain remarkably intact. Listed as a historic district in 2018, Mr. Martin tells the field's history through remarkable stories of forgotten men and women, hidden between twilight and years gone by. They urgently beckon from beyond the past, waiting to be heard. Hear them now in Martin's book, in one big sky above the Hempstead Plains, beneath the shadows of wings and the vision-place of souls. Hundreds of photos from the Cradle of Aviation Museum's archives and private and family sources, many never before seen, accompany Martin's book.
